

With a collection of photos and floor plans as starting point, the works call forth the image of a place over the decades. A camera is searching for a composition and the right white balance. One window that is closed, one that is open. Still bloom the maple the aspen the birch and the alder.